

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Love Will Last.

A fair maid crossed the hills one day,
And plaintively sang as she passed:
"Springtime came, but soon slipped away;
Summer flowers all faded fast,
Autumn's here with chill and decay—
Ah, if sometime, something could last."

Down in the vale, a lad heard the lay,
And sang in reply ere she passed:
"When you're away, dark is the day,
And winter's chill o'er earth is cast.
Though all else change, remember,
Pray,
My love, dear one, forever will last."

When chance to meet at close of day,
When trees their lengthening shadows cast

"So alone no more I pray;
Then though the spring slip fleetly past,
And flowers of summer fade away,
Naught shall we care, for Love will last."

—Mary Lettice Thomas, "Some Fancies in Verse."

Annual Report.

Miss Rebecca Norwood, president of the Woman's Christian Association, at the annual meeting on Tuesday last, submitted the following report, in which she says:

"It is my pleasure and privilege this afternoon, to announce the results of the long-talked-of April bazaar, prettily entitled the 'Floral Carnival.'"

"While the accomplished facts did not reach the mark set by the most hopeful among us, yet when we consider the many claims upon a generous public and especially the occurrence of the awful San Francisco calamity just at the time of the bazaar, we have reason to be most grateful and appreciative for the liberal patronage of friends."

"Too much praise cannot be bestowed upon the president-chairman of the bazaar, Miss Bodeker, upon the officers of the committee, for their able management of the affair, and upon the working chairman and their committees from the churches. We, as an association, heartily thank each and all for their untiring efforts and interest in making the Floral Carnival an occasion of great beauty and much social enjoyment to many who attended it. I cannot forbear speaking of the sweet spirit of Christian fellowship which prevailed throughout the days and evenings, periods which doubtless brought both fatigue and annoyance to the faithful workers, who, whatever happened, remained unfaltering by cheerful and responsive to every call."

"The sum realized, divided between the two branches of Christian Association work, nearly lifts a heavy burden of debt from the managers of this home for working women and girls, and gives to the Day Nursery and Free Kindergarten a splendid start for the future."

"As the treasurer of the carnival fund, Mrs. J. H. Capers, cannot be with us on account of the extreme illness of her son, it is my pleasant duty to read her report."

"It will be seen that we still need the interest and help of our friends, though truly, truly thankful for what has been accomplished."

The following is the report of Mrs. J. H. Capers, treasurer of the Floral Carnival:

McCaslin-Pollard.
A very pretty home wedding took place in this city last night, when Miss Grace Nelson Pollard, daughter of the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. John Pollard, became the bride of the Rev. Robert McCaslin, of Sweetwater, Tenn.

Both of the contracting parties are well and favorably known in Richmond. The bride is prominently connected and very popular. The groom has been pursuing his course at Union Theological Seminary for the past three years, and, during his residence here, has made many friends.

The wedding took place in the home of the bride's brother, Hon. John Garland Pollard. The house was beautifully decorated with palms and ferns. An interesting feature of the occasion was the attendance of every member of the Pollard family, even the grandchildren being present.

Promptly at 5 o'clock the procession entered the parlor, preceded by the officiating ministers, the Rev. E. B. Pollard, Ph. D., of Georgetown, Ky., and the Rev. W. W. Moore, D. D., president of Union Theological Seminary. Two nieces of the bride, Misses Mary Willis and Emily Pollard, acted as bridesmaids, and two of her nephews, Masters Bentley Cox and Garland Pollard, as pages, strewn flowers in her path to the altar. The groom was attended by his best man, Mr. Warren Stuart, of Fishersville, Va., and the bridesmaids were away by her brother, the Hon. John Garland Pollard.

The bride was attired in an Empire gown of white net over tulle, with Princess lace collar and bertha. Her veil was held in place by a coronet of lilies of the valley and in her hand she held a shower of white sweet peas.

Mr. and Mrs. McCaslin left late last night for a delightfully mysterious trip "to the mountains." At its conclusion, they will proceed to their future home at Cleveland, Tenn., where Mr. McCaslin is pastor of the Presbyterian Church.

Among the out-of-town guests present were Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Willis, Mrs. E. B. Pollard, of Georgetown, Ky.; Mrs. Otho P. Smoot, of Bowling Green, Va.; Miss Kate Cannon, of Norfolk, Va.; Herbert McCaslin, of Sweetwater, Tenn.

Freidenberg-Eigenbrun.
An exceedingly interesting wedding took place yesterday at noon in the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Coleman, No. 410 North Lombardy Street, when Miss Helen Eigenbrun became the bride of Mr. Lewis J. Freidenberg.

Decorations were entirely in marguerite, the beautiful ox-eyes daisies being in every possible space.

Mrs. H. T. Nordenman, as matron of honor, wore a most exquisite imported lingerie gown, hand-embroidered. Mr. Philip Freidenberg, brother of the groom, was best man, and the ushers were Mr. Joseph Freidenberg, of New York; Mr. Herbert Eigenbrun, of Chicago; Mr. Nathan Coleman, of New York, and Mr. Nathan Simon.

The bride was daintily gowned in white chiffon cloth, en princess, trimmed in point de venise lace. She was given away by her brother, Mr. Edward Eigenbrun, of Petersburg.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mrs. Edward Eigenbrun, Master Irving Eigenbrun, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Cohen, Mr. and Mrs. Emanuel Levy, Miss Ethel Levy, Mr. Isaac Cohen, Miss Hannah Cohen, all of Petersburg, Va.; Mrs. Mollie Whitehill, Mr. Simon Grief, Mrs. David Grief, all of Baltimore, Md.

At the home of the bride's parents, in Canaan, Va., a quiet wedding took place on Tuesday afternoon, June fifth, at two o'clock, when Miss Stella Crockett became the wife of Mr. Frank Neale Gilman, of Richmond. The Rev. W. C. Vaden officiated.

The house was beautifully decorated with palms and cut flowers. There were no attendants and only the near relatives of the contracting parties were present. They will make their home in this city.

BONNEY LESLEY.

By ROBERT BURNS.

The subject of this poem was Miss Lesley Baillie. Her father, accompanied by her and her sister, called on Burns at Dumfries, on their way to England. Burns says, "I took my horse (though God knows I could ill spend the day with them. It was about nine, I think, when I left them; and riding home I composed the following ballad." Miss Baillie afterwards became Mrs. Cumming. She died in Edinburgh in 1843. Caledonia (Cal-e-do-nia, accent on the third) or Caledonia is Scotland. Other selections from Burns, his portrait, autograph and biographical sketch have already appeared.

O! I saw ye bonny Lesley
As she went o'er the Border?
She's gone like Alexander,
To spread her conquests farther.

To see her is to love her,
And love but her forever;
For Nature made her what she is,
And never made another.

Thou art a queen, fair Lesley,
Thy subjects we, before thee;
Thou art divine, fair Lesley,
The hearts of men adore thee.

The doll he couldna harm thee,
Nor aught that doth belong thee;
He'd look into thy bonny face,
And say, "I cannot wrong thee."

The powers above will guard thee;
Mischance shall not stoer thee;
Thou'lt like thyself so lovely,
That ill they'll ne'er let near thee.

Return again, fair Lesley,
Return to Caledonia,
That we may brag we have a lass
There's none again so bonny.

SOLDIER IN PHILIPPINES TOLD PATHETIC STORY

P. J. Duff, Respectable-Looking Man, Driven to Drugs by Painful Wounds.

A fiend to morphine, because to do without the drug meant the most excruciating pains through his body, and left his condition such that work could not be done, P. J. Duff, a respectable appearing white man, printer by trade, appeared in Police Court yesterday as the defendant upon a charge of creating a disorderly house early in the morning in his boarding house, No. 43 North Twelfth Street. At two o'clock in the morning he had imagined that there were men in a trap in the yard and he fired his pistol from his room. Officers were hurriedly summoned and he was arrested.

In court yesterday morning, the man told a most pitiful story. He said that some years ago he was wounded in the Philippines and had lain for two years in bed, hovering between life and death. Finally he got up, but the wounds were so horrible that he took a little morphine to ease him.

"I became addicted to the use of the drug in this way, judge, and I cannot do without it now. At this time my wounds pain me terribly. The officers took from me a small bottle of the drug and a little of this would ease the pain," said the man.

He had nothing in appearance that would suggest a morphine fiend and his manner was that of a gentleman. He told a story that he intended going to New York within a short time and there he operated on with a view of removing the cause of the pain. Without the trouble he could quit the drug, he believed.

Justice Crutchfield thought that the man would perhaps do himself or some one else injury if allowed to go about, and continued the case until the 16th, in order that a physician might see him. The court ordered that he should be given all the liberty possible in the jail, and that if the physician thought it best, the drug should be administered in small doses.

"It's a terrible punishment to send me down to jail, Your Honor, for I have done nothing other than to injure myself," pleaded the prisoner.

"I believe it will be for your good," said Justice Crutchfield.

Duff has been boarding with Mr. O. B. East for several days for about two months. He worked for the Everett Wadley firm for a while as printer.

INDICTMENTS ARE EXPECTED

Grand Jury Has Placed Its Report in Hands of Commonwealth's Attorney Folkes.

GREAT CROWD TO ATTEND

Likely That Probability of Indictments Will Attract Many to Hustings Court To-day.

After a strenuous day's work yesterday in the midsummer heat of the jury room, the grand jury engaged in the laborious task of sifting to the bottom the charges of alleged election frauds in the returns from the First Jefferson Precinct, laid their report in the hands of Commonwealth's Attorney Minnie Folkes, who went to work on the matter at once. Though the exact nature of his task is not known, it is extremely probable that the Attorney's duty is to draw up the indictments which may possibly be made as a result of the investigation.

According to the opinion of many who have watched the proceedings most closely, none of the election officials will be mixed up in the indictments, and several bets were actually made, staked on the reality or falsity of this statement.

From authoritative sources it has been learned that there will be two indictments rendered this morning, one against a voter at the recent primary who did not possess ability to vote, and another who was mixed up in the affair in getting the affidavits. However, the real outcome is not yet known, and indictments or presentments that may be of a startling nature are liable to reach the ears of those who gather in the Hustings Court this forenoon to hear the report of the jury.

Meets Again To-day.

Yesterday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock, the grand jury filed forth from their chamber, and entered the court-room, and Chairman Otway S. Allen stated to Judge Witt that the report of the jury was in the hands of Commonwealth's Attorney Folkes that they desired to be adjourned till this morning at 11 o'clock. This is as much about the final result of the probing as is positively and officially known.

The feature of yesterday's session of the jury was the significance of the fact that Attorney Folkes remained with them during the entire afternoon's session, and naturally there was much speculation as to the import of the close conference. The jury got down to work in the forenoon at 11 o'clock. The first witness called was Alderman W. M. Turpin, but he spent only a few minutes in the room, and then returned to the City Democratic Committee, was next called in, and was closeted with the jury till just before they reported to the court, shortly after 2 o'clock.
